

The Port Washington Public Library

A monthly guide to your community library, its programs and services

Issue No. 243, June 2009

Marion Klein, Marion McManus, Ann Pellaton and Catchi, along with Patrick J. Foye, will be honored on September 12

Foundation announces honorees

The Port Washington Library Foundation's Sixth Inspiration Gala will take place Saturday, September 12. This year, the library will be transformed for an arts festival, cocktail hour and dining reception honoring Patrick J. Foye and four women who have served on the library's Art Advisory Council for more than 35 years. The Honorable Leonard Wurzel, mayor of Sands Point, is Honorary Chair.

Catherine Childs (Catchi), Marion Klein, Marion McManus and Ann Pellaton have been a part of the library family since 1970. All are working artists who have given their time to the group that evaluates, schedules and hangs exhibits in the library's Main Gallery each month.

Their dedication and tireless energy are a wonderful example of community service and service to our library.

As individuals, all four women have exhibited widely in galleries and museums. Each has received

Roadwise Review

Now you can check your driving abilities conveniently and confidentially from the comfort of home. The Roadwise Review CD-ROM from AAA can be used on your home computer so that you can monitor your "driving health." Copies are available in the Media Department.

Free notary service

. . . the library offers free notary service weekdays between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. No appointment is necessary, but call ahead to confirm availability.

Filmmaker visits

Filmmaker Ann Deborah Levy visits on Monday, June 22 at 7:30 p.m. to present two of her films. Waterscape: Illusions captures compelling images of a mysterious wilderness lake and its elegant swans. The filmmaker films the antics of a family of swans, ponders the script she is writing, attempts the optimal light meter reading, and becomes frustrated when the swans' activities make them difficult to film. Offscreen voices bring to life notable "expert" swan observers ranging from Aristotle to Samuel Taylor Coleridge. The short film Watercolors chronicles the surface of a pond over the course of a year.

Meet John McWhorter

English is full of inconsistencies and peculiarities, but many of them are explained by fascinating historical detail. "The real story of English shows us how English is genuinely weird — miscegenated, abbreviated, and interesting," says bestselling author, linguist, and Manhattan Institute Senior Fellow, John McWhorter.

In his new book, Our Magnificent Bastard Tongue: The Untold History of English (Gotham, 2008), McWhorter delves into our language's past, explaining its quirks and quandaries. Drawing on genetic and linguistic research as well as a cache of trivia about the origins of sentence structure and words, McWhorter's book demonstrates the arbitrary, maddening nature of English.

On Friday, June 19 at 12:10 p.m., the Friends of the Library invites you to meet John McWhorter, who will address any questions you may have. A contributing editor to The New Republic, he has taught linguistics at the University of California at Berkeley and has been widely profiled in the media. Books will be available for purchase and signing.

Professor Germano lectures

Professor Thomas Germano visits on Thursday, June 18 at 3 p.m. for a stimulating slide-illustrated lecture, The Battle of Anghiari: Leonardo's Lost Masterpiece. In the early 1500s, the Florentine Republic commissioned Michelangelo and Leonardo Da Vinci to paint two battle scenes to commemorate the heroic victories of the Republic. Da Vinci created numerous sketches before setting brush to wall. While neither artist completed this commission, it is currently believed that beneath the frescoes in the Palazzo Vecchio in the Sala Cinquecento, Leonardo's incomplete "Battle of Anghiari" might be found. This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

honors and awards and is affiliated with a number of professional organizations. Biographies will be available at the event.

Patrick J. Foye is a partner in Rivkin Radler LLP's Corporate & Commercial and Real Estate, Zoning & Land Use Practice Groups. Mr. Foye's practice focuses on corporate restructuring work and real estate projects from the firm's Manhattan office.

Prior to joining the firm, Mr. Foye was appointed by Governor Spitzer and served as Chairman of the Empire State Development Corporation, where he played a leadership role in the Moynihan Station, Jacob Javits Convention Center, Long Island City redevelopment, Brooklyn Bridge Park, and Harriman Research Campus projects, in addition to a variety of other initiatives. There, he also oversaw various subsidiaries which managed economic and real estate development.

Mr. Foye was a corporate partner at Skadden Arps where he led the firm's Brussels, Budapest and Moscow offices.

Patrick Foye previously served as Executive Vice President of Apartment Investment and Management Company (AIMCO), a NYSE-listed, S&P 500 component company. Mr. Foye has also served as Chief Executive Officer of United Way of Long Island.

Mr. Foye has served on a number of boards including the Long Island Power Authority, (Vice Chair 1995-2006), New York Public Asset Fund (Chair 2004-08), the Long Island Association, LIA Health Alliance, Long Island Community Foundation, Port Washington Library Foundation, Sands Point Board of Zoning Appeals (2000-2006), and the Port Washington Union Free School District (elected May 2006). He also served on the boards of public companies, mutual funds with over $40 billion under management and an equity money manager with approximately $2 billion under management.

Seniors exhibit artwork

Artists from Port Washington Senior Citizens, Inc. in Manorhaven will exhibit their work in the library's Community Gallery throughout June. Barbara Silbert and Barbara Stein volunteer their time each week to teach and guide the class in their artistic endeavors. Exhibitors include Ed Balcourt, Anne Marie Bischoff, Nick Capobianco, Joan Masi, Socorro Roman and Llewellyn Simpkins.

Online resources: Homework Help & Live Librarian

Cramming for exams? Need help with those end-of-school-year projects?

Homework Help provides tutors for both English and Spanish-speaking patrons. Live Homework Help is available daily between 3 and 9 p.m. Tutors offer assistance to students in grades K through 12, college preparatory and adult learners.

Live Librarian offers Nassau County residents real-time communication with a reference librarian who can assist with your Internet search or answer questions about our electronic resources. The services is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Log on to our website at www.pwpl.org to make use of either of these online resources.

These services are made possible by the Friends of the Port Washington Public Library, and both are available year round.

Library at the LIRR Popular service to resume in July

The library's service to Long Island Railroad commuters resumes July 8. The Port Washington Public Library will be on-site at the Port Washington station Wednesday mornings (weather permitting) from 7 to 9 a.m. through August 26. To help make your commute enjoyable, a collection of popular paperbacks will be available for you to borrow.

You don't need your library card. When you're finished, simply return the books to the library table at the station on Wednesday mornings or to the library. This program is funded by the Friends of the Library.

For further information, contact Jean Bennett at (516) 883-4400, Ext. 119.

Meet comedian Jeff Kreisler

Get Rich Cheating: The Crooked Path to Easy Street (Harper, June 2009) is a hilarious satirical guide to getting ahead the old-fashioned way. Comedian/author Jeff Kreisler visits our library on Thursday, June 18 at 7:30 p.m. to look at how everyone in our society — from our politicians to our sports legends — cheats and how you can get a piece of that action.

Why shouldn't you be making millions of dollars as the CEO of a multinational corporation or as the clean-up hitter for a professional baseball team? The answer is simple: if you're not a CEO or a celebrity debutante splashed across the pages of US Weekly, you're just not cheating hard enough.

Fun, witty and irreverent, Get Rich Cheating is a book for people who want to get ahead in life but are too lazy to put in the work.

Kreisler is Comedy Central's InDecision 2008 award-winning comedian who maintains a syndicated business humor column on Jim Cramer's TheStreet.com. He lives in New York City, and performs his stand-up comedy around the country. Books will be available for purchase and signing.

This program is sponsored by Friends of the Library.

Bollywood Musicals on DVD

The success of Slumdog Millionaire (screening here on June 12) has raised interest in Bollywood cinema, the Mumbai-based industry that produces a thousand movies a year for an audience of 3.6 billion viewers worldwide. Bollywood cooks up a "masala" of music, dance, comedy and melodrama involving unlucky lovers, intolerant parents, crooked politicians, crusading policemen and courtesans with hearts of gold. Here are some of our recent releases:

Aamir (2008). A London-based doctor (Rajeev Khandelwal) must confront the choices he has made in his life as he wanders the crowded streets of a Muslim neighborhood in Mumbai. Amit Trivedi and Amitabh composed the songs for writer/director Raj Kumar Gupta.

C Kkompany (2008). Crime reporter Akshay Kumar and retired accountant Anupam Kher become friends, play a prank, earn notoriety, and put their newfound fame to good use. Anand Raj Anand and Shabbir Ahmed penned the tunes for writer/director Sachin Yardi.

Chal Chala Chal (2009). When simpleton Deepak (Govinda) wins a school bus in a court case, he follows his father's advice and decides to run it. Anand Raj Anand, Anu Malik and Sunil Jha supplied the music for director Rajiv Kumar.

Dasvidaniya (2008). A doctor's grave diagnosis inspires Amar Kaul (Vinay Pathak) to create a list of things to do before he dies. Arshad Sayed scripted, and Kailash Kher wrote the songs, for director Shashant Shah.

Heroes (2008). Sohail Khan and Vatsal Seth travel a thousand miles to deliver three letters as part of their film school assignment. Sajid and Wajid Ali supplied the tunes for writer/director Samir Karnik.

Jodhaa Akbar (2008). The marriage of alliance between Muslim Emperor Jalaluddin Mohammad Akbar (Hrithik Roshan) and Hindu Princess Jodhaa (Aishwarya Rai) leads to true love. Director Ashutosh Gowariker co-scripted. A.R. Rahman penned the songs.

Mere Khwabon Mein Jo Aaye

(2009). When a woman (Raima Sen) discovers that her husband is having an affair, she conjures an ideal fantasy man who helps rebuild her self-confidence. Lalit Pandit wrote the music for scenarist/director Madhureeta Anand.

Oye Lucky! Lucky Oye! (2008). Lucky (Abhay Deol), a gawky young man from the lower middle classes, becomes one of the most wanted thieves in India. Director Dibakar Bannerjee co-scripted. Sneha Khanwalkar composed the songs.

Traffic Signal (2008). Director Madhur Bhandarkar explores the complex society of eunuchs, handicapped beggars, lepers, street kids, drug addicts and prostitutes that forms around the traffic signals on the streets of Mumbai. Raju Singh and Sameer Tandon supplied the melodies.

Welcome to Sajjanpur (2008). Mahadev's (Shreyas Talpede) ability to write letters makes him popular with the largely non-literate populace of Sajjanpur. Director Shyam Benegal scripted with Ashok Mishra. Shantanu Moitra composed the songs.

Yuvvraaj (2008). Three brothers vie to inherit their father's fortune, until one woman reveals to them that relationships can be more powerful than money. Director Subhas Ghai also co-scripted and makes a "special appearance." A.R. Rahman and Gulzar wrote the songs.

Port resident exhibits paintings

Port Washington resident Eleanor Himel exhibits her paintings in the Main Gallery June 2 through 30. The Art Council hosts a reception for the artist on Saturday, June 6 from 2 to 4 p.m.

"The moods and colors of the ocean beaches and bays of Long Island are a constant source of inspiration. Summer vacations spent in the parklands of Ontario with its peaceful flat landscape and uninhabited lakes have also been favorite subjects of my paintings."

Eleanor received the Firehouse Plaza Gallery's 2009 Award of Excellence. She is a member of The Art Guild of Port Washington, The Pen and Brush, NYC and the Stamford Art Association.

Exhibits sponsored by the Art Advisory Council are privately funded by donations to the Port Washington Library Foundation.

Homemade Hollywood

Join Clive Young on Tuesday, June 9 at 7:30 p.m., for an exciting look at the history of "fan films." Regular people are making films based on their favorite movies, books, TV shows and even video games, using consumer video cameras and computers. Many of these films are high-quality efforts, sometimes with a price tag of as much as $30,000. They feature Batman, Harry Potter, Superman, Indiana Jones, Darth Vader and more of the world's most famous characters. Most films have only been seen on the internet, but we'll screen them in full-quality video. We'll also discuss the history of the growing fan film movement and explore what compels budding filmmakers to invest so much.

Clive's recently published Homemade Hollywood is a fascinating study of this overlooked corner of the filmmaking world. He is senior editor for Pro Sound News and has written for MTV, VH1.com and American Songwriter. This program is sponsored by the FOL.
